HUGHES FLAYS DEMOCRATS IN RINGING SPEECH

Assails Administration Upon Accepting the Republican Nomination.

APPLAUSE REACHES A TUMULT

Thundering Polities. Abroad and at Home, He Declares. Have Sacrificed
President of Nation Roosevelt Applauds Declaration of the Candidate.

Special to The Courier.

NEW YORK, August 1.—"America first and America efficient." This was the slogan with which Charles Evans Hughes last night formally accepted
the Republican nomination for President before an enthusiastic audience
which thronged Carnegie Hall to capacity. On the flag-decked stage from which he announced the Republican politics, were gathered 300 leaders of the reunited party from all sections of the country, and from a central tier
of Theodore Roosevelt applauded
vigilantly the nominee's caustic criticisms of the Democratic administration.

Amid outbursts which at times approached tumult, the nominee characterized the conduct of the Democrats in the country's foreign relations as a "lamentable sacrifice of national repute," and its course in Mexico during the past three years as a "travesty of international politics." He told the theme for the existing condition of anarchy, murder and rapine in the adjoining Republic directly at Mr. Wilson's door, and described the various expeditions into Mexico as "the height of folly."

Mr. Hughes' reference to the sinking of the Lusitania, and his direct charge
that it resulted from the failure of this government to convince foreign nations that the words "strict accountability" meant what they said, brought the most prolonged applause of the evening. The only rival to this demonstration came when he declared that he favored woman's suffrage, and believed that the granting of universal enfranchisement should not be delayed, because delay would intensify a feminist movement which would subvert normal issues.

United States Senator Warren G.
Harding of Ohio, who was chairman of the Republican National Convention, formally notified Mr. Hughes of his nomination, declaring: "Your record of public service, your well-known and courageous views on public questions when in executive position, your abiding devotion to Republicanism, your possession of a confidence which has united all believers
in Republican principles under party
banner, your unimpeachable and abiding Americanism, your high personal character and well-known capacity—
all these have fixed you in the American mind as the best exponent of Republican principles and the wisest
leader to restore American prestige
and efficient government."

Mr. Hughes, in his address accepting the nomination, assailed the administration for the course it has pursued with reference to Mexico, maintenance of American rights during the European war, preparedness and other great questions of the day. He declared for a new policy of "firmness and consistency" toward Mexico, for
"the unflinching maintenance of all American rights on land and sea" and for "adequate national defense; adequate protection on both our western and eastern coasts."

"We denounce all plots and conspiracies in the interest of any foreign nation," Mr. Hughes said. "Utterly intolerable is the use of our soil for alien intrigues. Every American must unreservedly condemn them and support every effort for their suppression."

The nominee attacked President Wilson's "direction of diplomatic intercourse" from the beginning, declaring that where there should have been conscious strength and expertness
there had been weakness and incoherence. He cited San Domingo as an instance where appointments had gone to "deserving Democrats" and to the failure at his post in Paris during the European war as "a lamentable sacrifice of international repute."

"I endorse the declaration in the platform in favor of woman suffrage,"
Mr. Hughes declared, and he added,
"opposition may delay, but in my judgment cannot defeat this movement. I favor the vote for women."

One-fourth of the speech was devoted to Mexico. Stop after step taken by the administration with reference to Mexico was assailed, from the days of Huerta to the note sent to the de facto government by the State Department June 20, last, part of which was quoted in the speech.

America, Mr. Hughes said, had no policy of aggression toward Mexico, no desire for any part of her territory,
but wished her to have peace, stability
and prosperity.

"The conduct of the administration has created difficulties we shall have to surmount," he said. "We demand
from Mexico the protection of the lives and property of our citizens and the security of our border from depredations."

JUDGE VAN SWEARINGEN UPHOLDS RECEIVERSHIP IN THE THOMPSON CASE

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, August 1.—Mrs.
Elizabeth Kremer, widow of Theodore Kremer of Uniontown, who holds a claim for $3,898 against the estate of Joseph V. Thompson, will not be permitted to intervene in the receivership
proceedings, according to a decision handed down at the opening of court this forenoon by Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen.

The decision means that the appointment of receivers for the Thompson estate will stand, at least until the higher courts have an opportunity to pass upon the case. Judge Van Swearingen held that it is legal to appoint receivers for the estate of an individual under circumstances such as surround the Thompson estate. There is nothing now left to hinder the receivers and the committee of the creditors from proceeding to dispose of the property of the estate under the directions of the court and applying the proceeds to the payment of the claims of the creditors.

Today's decision follows the arguments on the rule granted upon Mr.
Thompson, his receivers and the plaintiffs in the action for receivers
requiring them to show cause why
Mrs. Kremer should not be permitted to intervene in the receivership proceedings, and issue execution on her judgment, an unsecured claim of less than $4,000 among others amounting to more than $13,000,000. Samuel Untermyer of New York and John M.
Freeman of Pittsburgh presented their argument against the petition of Mrs.
Kremer on July 1. The argument of H. S. Dumbauld and C. A. Tait, counsel for Mrs. Kremer, was heard a few weeks before. The rule was granted by the court last February 23. The answer to the petition was filed by Mr. Thompson's receivers on April 10.

KAISER LAUDS BRAVE TROOPS

Third Year of War, He Says, Will See Their Gallant Achievements Repeated on Land and Sea.

By Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, via London, August
1.—Emperor William, according to a telegram received here today from Berlin, has issued the following proclamation to the German forces on land and sea:

"Comrades, the second year of the world war has elapsed. Like the first year, it was for Germany's arms a year of glory. On all fronts you inflicted new and heavy blows on the enemy."

"Whether the enemy retreated, borne down by the force of your attacks, or whether reinforced by foreign assistance, collected and pressed into service from all parts of the world, he tried to rob you of the fruits of former victories, you always proved yourself superior to him."

"Even where England's tyranny was uncontested, namely, on the free
waves of the sea, you victoriously fought against gigantic superiority."

Concluding, the proclamation says:
"Whether the enemy wages war
with the force of arms or with cold, calculating malice, we shall continue as before into the third year of the war. The spirit of duty to the Fatherland and an unbending will to victory
permeate our homes and our fighting forces today as in the first days of the war. With God's gracious help I am convinced that your future deeds will equal those of the past and present."

GERMANS FIGHT WITH FURY.

PARIS, August 1.—The Germans,
reacting with more than usual vigor
north of the Somme, have made considerable gains against counter attack during the last 24 hours without in any way
changing the position of the French.
According to French official reports,
all attempts of the Germans to regain lost ground have been beaten off by the French rifle, machine gun and artillery fire, while the work of strengthening and adapting the newly won trenches is being carried on speedily and methodically by the engineer corps.

The French commanders regard the situation on the whole as excellent and say that the arrangement in the rear of the attacking forces have reached a point of perfection never before seen.
Material of all kinds is in abundance.
The fury of the German assault and the strength of the effective engaged shows the determination of the emperor's generals to spare no effort to prevent the French from working their way along the north bank of the river by way of Clercy to attack Peronne from two sides. Aviators report that the Germans are making fervent efforts to reinforce the already strongly fortified positions about Clercy and are gathering reserves from several directions. Heavy fighting is looked for in the near future.

TON BOTHNER MENACED.

LONDON, August 1.—General
Count von Bothner's army is reported to be almost enveloped by the Russians in Galicia, says a dispatch from Rome to the Wireless Press. Cossack divisions, after the occupation of Borisy, are said to have destroyed the railways behind the Austrian army.
The Germans are withdrawing from Kovel their heavy artillery, food and munitions depots, says another dispatch from Rome to the Wireless Press. The city of Vladimir-Volynsky
in Volhynia, is said to have been completely evacuated by the Germans.

TO GIVE UP LEMBERS.

LONDON, August 1.—Telegrams
from Vienna say that the Austro-Hungarians have made all preparations for the evacuation of Lemberg,
the Galician capital, says a dispatch
from Copenhagen to the Exchange Telegraph Company. Large quantities of goods have been removed from the city.

Hughes is for Suffrage.

New York, August 1.—Charles E.
Hughes today declared for an amendment to the federal Constitution providing for woman suffrage. Mr.
Hughes' views on the subject were made public in a letter he had written to Senator Sutherland of Utah.

Leave for Florida.

J. R. Davidson and daughter, Miss
Ruth, left last night for Jacksonville, Fla., where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Davidson, Jr., for some time.

FIRST BARGAIN DAY BREAKING ALL RECORDS

Throngs of Shoppers Jam
the Stores to Do Their Buying.

THE MERCHANTS ARE ALL SMILES

Confident the Business This Year Will Establish a New Mark; Buyers Say
They Never Got Better Values and
Are Once More Boosting the Town.

Bargain Days began today, strangers wondered whether the circus was in town, while home folks sized up those departing to the West Penn picnic and commented that the income outnumbered the outgoings by a wide margin. The merchants smiled broadly, when they had time to do anything else other than wait on trade, while the buyers, between purchases, stopped to remark that they had never seen better values offered for the money, either here or elsewhere.

Taking it by and large, Bargain
Days this year promise to hang up a record. In the first place there is more money in circulation, and in the second, the affair has been gradually growing until now it is not only an established shopping institution, but a highly important one.

The shoppers began to buy early.
At some of the stores they were waiting when the doors opened. In all of the places of business there has been a steady stream of buyers. Merchants say the shoppers did not stop at the bargain counter alone. One man declared that the special bargain
he offered for the occasion, a mighty good one, by the way, did not keep pace with sales in many other lines.

The weather man treated Connellsville nicely. The storm last night cleared the air and made it pleasant to be out. This morning hours were cool and comfortable, while there was a gentle breeze all day to temper the effects of the mounting thermometer.
Virtually every store had extra clerks on the job. The Wright-Metzler Company brought a force from Uniontown to augment the regular staff,
while Kohack's had a number of their Mount Pleasant clerks over for the two days. Other stores had added
to their forces so far as was possible, but everybody said there were not enough clerks to go around.

"We would have been rushed had
we had a dozen extra clerks," one merchant said. He has a large store.
Other smaller dealers regretted the fact that they could not pick up one or two, and even more assistants.

"I have seen an early-morning rush for bargains that almost compared with this," a business man remarked.
"but I have never yet seen the gleaming volume of buying keep up the way it has. We were busier at noon than any time during the morning and I look for a rush this afternoon."

Every street car brought shoppers
in. The trains brought them from the mountains and elsewhere. Automobile shopping parties were here in numbers. Everybody wanted to buy, and everybody seemed well pleased with what they got.

The Connellsville merchants have established an enviable reputation
among shoppers of the surrounding towns. That is why Bargain Days are so popular. Real bargains are offered. That is the inviolable rule.
"We believe Connellsville is the best town in which to shop," the merchants say, "and we offer these bargains each year to induce folks to come here and be convinced. It has been our experience that the buying on these days
is never confined to the bargains alone. It seems folks just take these two days for general shopping. They are shrewd buyers, too."

GASOLINE CHEAPER

Prices Drop With Slump in Crude Oil Market.

By Associated Press.

FINDLAY, O., August 1.—Oils purchased by the Ohio Oil Company, being producing capacity of the Standard were lowered 6 and 10 cents a barrel today. The new prices are: North and South Lima, $1.58; Wooster, $1.80;
Illinois and Princeton, $1.62; Plymouth, $1.45. Gasoline prices are expected to drop at once.

CLEVELAND, August 1.—Prices of gasoline at most of the service stations in this city were reduced from 24 to 25 cents a gallon today following a drop in the oil market.

STATISTICS SHOW JULY 1916 BROKE RECORDS FOR LENGTH AND SEVERITY OF HEAT SPELL

Records kept at the West Penn disclose the fact that July 1916 was the hottest July for the last five years. It was nearly three degrees hotter than its nearest competitor for heat honors, July 1912. Since July 12 the mercury has registered 90 or over every day, though the maximum has been only 93. This was reached on July 15, 16, 24 and 28.

The average maximum temperature
for the month was 89.6, compared to only 84.3 for the same month last year, the average minimum was 66.9, compared to 62.5 and the average mean 77.6 against 73.4. The hottest mark for the month last year was 94 on the 16, but the mercury did not hit
the high spots with such regularity
as in 1916.

The following figures show how much hotter July 1916 was than the same month in the preceding four years:

NEW HIGH SCHOOL WILL BE BUILT BY A SOMERSET FIRM

Lawrence & Critchfield Got General Contract for $137,823.

FAR UNDER THE ESTIMATES

William Sellers Gets Plumbing Contract and Frank Sweeney Will Do
the Wiring; Only Three Firms Seek General Contract, Two Being High.

Connellsville's new $170,000 high school building will cost $137,823. The School Board received a pleasurable surprise last night when bids for the general contract, plumbing and heating, and electrical work were opened and the estimates were far below what they expected.

The general contract for the building was awarded to Lawrence &
Critchfield of Somerset for $137,823.
The plumbing and heating contract was awarded to William Sellers of Connellsville, whose bid was $11,200,
and Frank Sweeney of Connellsville was low bidder on the electrical wiring with an estimate of $3,850.

There were only three bidders on the building, though eight contractors
had applied for plans and specifications.
George Schenck & Company of Butler, successful bidders on the Crawford building, were high on the larger structure with a figure of $167,000.
The Lay Construction Company of Pittsburg bid $169,705.

The Somerset firm agreed to do extra excavating for $1 a cubic yard, extra concrete work for $7 a cubic yard, and furnish extra brick for $15
a thousand.

The contract was awarded to the Somerset firm upon condition that they furnish bond in the full sum of the contract with the American Surety Company. The two members of the firm were present at the meeting and were afterwards introduced to the board. Mr. Lawrence expressed a desire to dispose of the preliminary details in the closing of the contract as soon as possible in order to get started at once. He said they could get started next week if these matters were expedited.

There were five bidders on the plumbing and heating. Their figures were: Barnes & Clark, New Castle, $12,294; Ernst Withers, New Castle,
$12,122; Stahl Plumbing Company,
$14,652.33; F. T. Evans, $12,842.30,
and William Sellers, $11,200. Mr.
Sellers was awarded the contract under the same conditions as the general contract—that a bond in the full sum of the contract be furnished. He was present at the meeting and agreed to furnish any surety the board desired.

The Howard Electric Company bid
$3,907.65 on the electrical contract and Frank Sweeney bid $3,800. With telephone fixtures eliminated, Mr. Sweeney took $41 from his bid and the Howard Company $409.20. This made
Mr. Sweeney the lowest bidder.

The low bids were a distinct surprise to members of the board. Architect W. G. Eccles of New Castle addressed the board before the bids were opened. He said that though he expected good bids the board should not be surprised at anything, as these were strenuous times and satisfactory bids were hard to get. It was stated afterward that Mr. Eccles expected that the estimates would not run
much under $180,000.

A resolution was passed paying Architect Eccles two and a half per cent on the contracts, i.e., the low bids will cut down the architect's commission considerably. He received $3,594.66 last night, this having been payable since he first submitted his plans, under the terms of his agreement with the board. His commission will amount to 5 per cent of the cost of the building, or approximately twice the sum he received last night.

After considerable discussion, the Standard Heater Company of Martinsburg, O., was awarded the contract to install a new heating and ventilation system in the Third Ward school
at a cost of $2,560.

BOLT CAUSES THE DEATH OF A LITTLE BOY

Lightning Explodes Powder Magazine and Hits Several Houses.

RAIN POURS DOWN IN TORRENTS

Hot Spell Is Broken by Severe Thunderstorm Which Does Much Damage
in This Section; Woman Badly Hurt at Leisenring by a Bolt.

One boy was killed, several persons were shocked, a powder magazine was blown up, and several houses were struck by lightning, during the severe electrical storm that raged from 8 o'clock last night until early this morning.

The one fatality was the death of Andy Martinchick, 12 years old, who was thrown from a wagon at Dunbar when the horses became frightened by lightning. The boy's father, Andy Martinchick, Sr., was struck in the eye when thrown out and severely injured.

A house in Grape alley, opposite the Connellsville Distillery, was struck and badly damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Kaiser Magofsky were both severely shocked when lightning struck their home, House 107, at No.
3 Leisenring.

The Frisbee powder magazine, east of the city was struck and a large quantity of powder set off.

A building, used as a storehouse in the rear of the Dunbar school was set on fire during the storm and loss estimated at $200 caused.

A terrific bolt of lightning shortly before 9 o'clock last night struck the powder magazine of the Frisbee Har-ware Company on the Frisbee farm,
east of the city, causing about 50 kegs
of powder to go up. About 300 pounds of dynamite, contained in boxes, or various sizes, failed to explode, although the boxes were tossed about and most of them were charred by flames.

There was little or no explosion
when the magazine let go. The lightning set off the powder and keg after keg went up. Herbert C. Frisbee, who resides on the farm some distance away, says that the first intimation he and his family had of the explosion was the illumination. They heard no sound. As the powder kegs ignited
they were tossed skyward, the effect being that of a gigantic fountain of flame.

The magazine was constructed of sheet iron with a wooden floor. The floor was intact after the explosion,
though the iron sides and roof were torn away and the sheets strewn in all directions.

Several boxes of dynamite were left on the floor of the building and the others were strewn throughout the adjoining field. So far as Mr. Frisbee could ascertain, not a box of dynamite
let go.

The illumination in the sky was plainly visible in the city and people thought that some farmer's barn had been struck. The Frisbee house is some distance away. Originally, the powder magazine was located closer to the city line, but it was later removed to its present location in the field back of the farmhouses.

A double house on Grape alley, owned by the Snyder heirs, and occupied by Dominic Contori and Fred Crimp
was struck by a bolt of lightning shortly before 9 o'clock. The corner of the roof, on the side occupied by the Contori family, was torn off and a screen door and part of the jamb to which it was fastened were hurled some distance away. Mrs. Contori was standing at the door when the lightning tore it away. She escaped unhurt. Several boarders asleep upstairs were hurled from their beds.
The rain extinguished the flames that followed the lightning.

Lightning struck house No. 107 at
No. 3 Leisenring and caused damage
in every room. Mrs. Kaiser Magofsky, who was upstairs comforting her three children, was stunned by the bolt but her husband, who was downstairs, was knocked unconscious. The latter was severely shocked. He was attended by Dr. Francis King and had improved a great deal by morning. The children were unhurt. The force of the bolt hurled articles of furniture about all over the house.

Andy Martinchick, 12 years old,
was instantly killed when thrown from a wagon on Kingin hill, near Dunbar,
after the horses had become frightened by the lightning. The boy's father, Andy Martinchick, Sr., was also hurled to the ground and badly hurt,
some object having penetrated his eye.
He was still under a doctor's care in the morning.

A storage shed in the rear of the Dunbar frame school house was burned shortly after the storm started. It is not known whether it was struck by lightning or whether water getting into a quantity of unslacked lime caused the fire. W. S. Crowe, the contractor, had a quantity of lime in the shed and
L. C. Foltz had some tools. The loss will be about $200.

Considerable other damage was caused by rain. The streets were miniature rivers and gravel from some of the hill streets was washed down on Pittsburg street as far as Brimstone Corner.

Year	A. Max.	A. Min.
1916	89.6	66.9
1915	84.3	62.5
1914	86.4	63.4
1913	88.8	64.0
1912	86.7	62.5

The hottest day in July 1915 registered 94 degrees; in 1914 it was the same; in 1913 and 1912 it was 95.
The heat wave was broken somewhat by the rain of Monday night.
Besides coming as a relief to suffering humanity, the downpour was a welcome one to the farmers.

Hospital Report.

The report of the Cottage State Hospital for the month has been given out. There were 19 patients at the beginning of the month. Fifty-four were admitted during the month; 23
were discharged and seven died.
Twenty-three remain at the hospital.
Levi H. Smith was admitted to the hospital today for an operation.

SCHOOL SITE COSTS $28,700

Viewers Make Their Awards for Properties Condemned by Board of Education for High School.

Attorney Fred D. Munson presented in court today the report of the board of viewers in the proceedings of the Connellsville Board of Education to condemn three of the properties comprised in the site of the new high school building at the corner of East Fairview avenue and South Prospect street.

The award to Mrs. Beulah H. Solisson was $5,500; to George B. Freed,
$7,200; and to Mrs. Mary E. Showman,
$4,500. The court approved the report, condemnation becoming absolute unless appeals are filed within 30 days.

The board of viewers which consists of Fred D. Munson, W. H. Blum, and J. V. E. Ellis, held hearings some weeks ago at which testimony was taken as to the values of the properties, ranging all the way from $1,000
to $12,000.

With the Armstrong property, which
the School Board purchased for $11,600, the new high school site will cost $28,700.

SHELLS SUBMARINE

Steamer Limp Little Port with Tale of Sea Battle.

By Associated Press.

MONTREAL, August 1.—The British steamer Clodmoor, just in port from Genoa, Italy, had a battle in the Mediterranean with a German or Austrian submarine. Her commander, Charles Hunter, announced today. He believes he left the submarine in a sinking condition.

The Clodmoor plainly showed the mark of the submarine gunfire. The steamship is armed with one gun for defensive purposes and it was with this her captain said that she shelled the submarine when she attacked and so seriously damaged her that she drew off in apparently a sinking condition.

The battle lasted half an hour, according to Captain Hunter, but only one shell did serious damage to the Clodmoor.

WANT AN EMBARGO

Jersey Congressmen Would Prohibit Shipment of Munitions.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, August 1.—Representatives John J. Eagan and James A.
Hamilton of New Jersey announced this afternoon at the conclusion of a conference of city, county, state and federal officials on the Black Tom explosion that they would go to Washington tomorrow, accompanied by Mayor
G. Fagan of Jersey City, to demand an embargo on the export of munitions
from Atlantic Coast ports.

The fourth arrest growing out of the separate inquiries under way was made today when E. L. Mackenzie, president of the National Dock &
Storage Company was arrested.

A BIG OUTING.

Seventeen Cars Take First of West
Penn's Picnicks to Oakford.

Seventeen special street cars were required to take the picnickers to Oak-ford Park today for the first day of the West Penn picnic. It is estimated that nearly 3,000 were present.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Miss Nellie Rae Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Byron Cunningham of Lower Tyrone township, and Frank W. Jones, superintendent of the Connelleville, Lower Tyrone and Upper Tyrone schools were married this morning at 5 o'clock. The ceremony, which was at the home of the bride, was performed by Rev. W. B. Parnell of the Dawson Presbyterian Church. Immediately after the marriage a wedding breakfast was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Jones left on the 6:30 Western Maryland train.

Their honeymoon will be spent in the Thousand Islands. Mrs. Jones was a teacher in the Lower Tyrone township schools for one year. Mr. Jones is the son of Mrs. Mary L. Jones of Scottsdale and was at one time principal of the Third ward school of Connelleville. He has also been principal at Edgeworth, Pa., and at Dawson.

The entire force of the McCarty store here motored to Oakford park Sunday for a picnic. The party numbered 20. Arrangements were in charge of E. L. Hegg, the manager of the store.

Miss Anne Donnelly will give a dance at Shady Grove on Saturday evening for Misses Helen Donaire, Katherine Myers, and Katherine Madden of Chicago, who are the guests of Miss Donnelly and Miss Anna Solson of West Peach street. James Rush and Solson Madden will give a dinner in honor of the Solson guests.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Protestant Church will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 in the church.

The fourth reunion of the Strickler family will be held at Shady Grove on Wednesday, August 2. All members of the family are expected to attend.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church will meet in the church Thursday afternoon at 2:30. A large attendance is desired, as there are only two more meetings in the conference.

A shower was held in the auditorium of the Immaculate Conception Church last evening in honor of Miss Catherine Burns of Leisensburg, whose marriage to John King will be an event of next week. The affair which was in charge of the Daughters of Isabella, was a complete surprise to the bride-elect. Many useful gifts were received. During the evening games were played and a buffet luncheon was served. About 35 were present, out of town guests being Mrs. J. W. Madison of Vanderbilt, Miss Gertrude C. Evans and Miss Mary Chancy of Scottsdale, Miss Anna McGee of Mount Pleasant and Mrs. J. F. Gantzer of Pittsburgh.

RELEASE HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER

Solon J. Fogley Will Teach Biology in Allentown School Next Term.

Solon J. Fogley, for two years teacher of biology in the high school, was released from his contract by School Board last night in order that he may accept a similar position in the Allentown, Pa., high school. He will receive the same salary as here but the new place brings him closer to his home in Morristown.

The same position was tendered Mr. Fogley after he had signed a contract with the local board last year. The board at that time declined to release him and he continued a member of the high school faculty. When the teacher who was elected to the Allentown place joined the national guard and went to the border, the place was again tendered to Mr. Fogley. He sought a release a second time and was successful. The school authorities were instructed to throw out lines for a suitable successor.

Announcement was made by Superintendent S. P. Ash that pupils of the first to sixth grades who formerly attended the Fourth Ward school will attend the Third Ward building next term. This will give the Third Ward pupils half day sessions. The seventh and eighth grades from the Fourth Ward school will continue to attend the South Side school. Arrangements have been made with Superintendent J. E. Angie of the Fayette Gas Company to lay a sewer for the Crawford school, using the gas company's excavating force, and charging the board for the mere cost of the labor entailed. This will save the district considerable.

BIGAMIST GOES TO PENITENTIARY

Must Serve From Two to Five Years For Dual Marriage; Brincat Goes to Workhouse.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, August 1.—Wilbur R. Brincat of Brownsville, entered a plea of guilty to charges of bigamy and perjury today and was sentenced by Judge E. H. Reppert to serve an indeterminate period of from two years and six months to five years in the Western Penitentiary.

James Brincat, who a few days ago made a sensational attempt to escape from an officer by jumping out the window of a street car with handcuffs on him, was sentenced to two years in the workhouse by Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen. Brincat had been in jail and was working on the roads. He escaped and hid up a foreigner named Wynn, relieving him of about $5. He told District Attorney S. John Morris that he took heroin which gave him courage to hold up the foreigner. Other sentences imposed today were:

Frank Dyer, carrying concealed weapons and assault and battery; costs, $75 fine and one year in jail.

William Allen, larceny of a suit case at the West Penn terminal; six months in jail.

Walter Lockett, absconding from a board bill; costs.

Hunter Collins, carrying concealed weapons and pointing firearms; costs, $75 fine and nine months in jail.

Matt Scott, carrying concealed weapons; costs, $75 fine and nine months in jail.

Joseph Goss, carrying concealed weapons, and larceny of a revolver; costs, $75 fine and one year in jail.

GUARANTORS MUST TAKE UP TICKETS

Alumni Association Falls to Make Good on Chautauqua Proposition.

The Alumni Association of the High School, which had planned to take charge of the sale of the Chautauqua season tickets, has made so indifferent a showing that at a meeting of the guarantors held last night it was decided to apportion the tickets in accordance with the terms of agreement entered into by the members of this organization. This means that each of the 46 guarantors will have to put up $20 for 10 tickets and trust to making the disposition of them in order to avoid sustaining individual loss of that amount.

About 400 tickets had been subscribed for during the session of the Chautauqua last summer. Only about 250 of these have been distributed among the subscribers. It is expected that the whole number subscribed will be taken inasmuch as a number of the subscribers are out of town or will be during the Chautauqua engagement.

A representative of the Chautauqua management was present at the meeting and agreed to distribute the remainder of the tickets called for by the last season's subscription list and to make sales of as many in addition as is practicable during the few days that remain before the opening day. By taking their quota of tickets and paying for them in cash the guarantors have assured the presence of the Chautauqua for the present season, but there is distinct disappointment that the Alumni Association has not taken more active or energetic interest in the ticket sale which, had it been done, would no doubt have provided the association with a worth-while sum to fit up Fayette field for athletic sports during the coming high school year.

DEUTCHLAND IS STILL IN PORT

Has Pilot Aboard and Appears Ready for Final Dash to Sea.

By Associated Press. BALTIMORE, August 1.—With a pilot aboard and primed fully as to engine efficiency, fuel, and provisions, the German merchant submarine Deutschland remained moored to her pier at Locust Point this forenoon at the conclusion of activities indicating final preparations for her starting on her return voyage to Germany.

No official reason could be ascertained for the delay but it was assumed that the tide was not high enough at its morning flood stage. This was due to a strong adverse wind blowing down the river and bay. The next high tide occurs between 7 and 9 o'clock tonight.

Unusual precautions were taken to protect the Deutschland from possible harm from above or below the surface. The channel from the submarine's slip to the main channel was thoroughly swept by a drag; suspended on a long line between the tug Thomas F. Timmons and a launch, and the United States coast guard cutter Wissahickon and the city police boat Lannan were on hand to afford protection.

HUGHES PLAYS DEMOCRATS IN RINGING SPEECH

abroad had not been accomplished, Mr. Hughes said, by the administration. There had been "brave words said in a series of notes," but "what does it avail to use some of the strongest words known to diplomacy if ambassadors can reach the impression that words are not to be taken seriously?" The nominee reiterated his declaration that had this government left no doubt that it meant to hold Germany to "strict accountability," there would have been no loss of life on the Lusitania.

Discussing preparedness Mr. Hughes said it was apparent that the United States was "shockingly unprepared." "The administration has failed to discharge its responsibility," Mr. Hughes continued. "Apparently it is now seeking to meet political exigencies by its naval program, but it has imposed upon the country an incompetent naval administration."

Of the present prosperity, Mr. Hughes said, "we are living in a fool's paradise." It is, he said, a prosperity brought about by the abnormal conditions of war. For the protection of the industries and workmen of the United States against the competition of an energized Europe," Mr. Hughes said it was plain that "we must have protective, upbuilding policies."

Mr. Hughes declared for the conservation of the just interests of labor, for conservation of national resources and for a national budget.

Mr. Hughes closed with an endorsement of the Republican platform and a formal acceptance of the nomination.

The large audience which crowded Carnegie Hall to capacity cheered for several minutes when Mr. Hughes appeared shortly after 8 o'clock.

The nominee, recognizing Theodore Roosevelt in one of the boxes, waved his hand to him, and Colonel Roosevelt clapped his hands in acknowledgment.

Mr. Hughes was frequently interrupted by laughter and applause.

After delivering his speech, Mr. Hughes was lent at a reception to the notification committee and the invited guests to the notification ceremony.

W. H. FLOTO BURIED

Former Meyersdale Business Man Succumbed at Akron.

MEYERSDALE, August 1.—The remains of W. H. Floto, who died at his home in Akron, O., last Friday, were brought here Sunday morning, arriving on train No. 6 over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and were taken charge of by Undertaker J. P. Reich, who conveyed them to the Union cemetery where interment was made.

Rev. D. W. Michael, of Zion Lutheran Church, of which Mr. Floto was a member when residing here, conducted the services at the grave. A large number of the local order of Masons attended the funeral and also held services at the grave.

Mr. Floto was at the time of his death 58 years old. He is survived by his wife, one son, Eugene, and two daughters, Misses Florence and Kathryn, all of Akron. His mother, Mrs. Rosanna Floto, and the following brothers and sisters also survive: Eugene H. of Connelleville; Daniel A. of Meyersdale; Ray, Charles E. and Augustus E. of Akron, Ohio; Mrs. Harney Porter of Akron, Ohio; and Mrs. John Baker of Hyndman.

Mr. Floto was a very prominent business man in Meyersdale until about four years ago when he removed to Akron.

bread he was holding.

Jordan Wright of Company C then donned the spurs and ran up the pole like a squirrel. He is an experienced lineman and carried away the five-spot with ease. Two-thirds of the regiment watched the proceedings.

A good one is told on Chaplain Schaal. He happened to be out after hours the other night and was halted by the guard with the challenge, "Halt, who goes there?" He answered, "The Chaplain." The guard replied, "All right, Charlie, come right in."

The boys of Company D and the hospital corps had a little athletic meet the other evening. The 100 yard dash was captured by Arch McCormick. Percy Sheetz won the broad jump, and Lyell Buttermore won the high jump.

Colonel Coulter told one yesterday on a Company E boy when he first got off the train here. He said the boy got off and looked around for about two minutes and said: "Oh, hell, let's go home and let the Greasers have it."

The Chaplain has a grouse on. He says the government is beating the boys out of a day's pay.

Uncle Ben McKenna, the Philippine veteran color bearer, has trouble keeping the youngsters in his tent quiet. He is everybody's uncle.

Jimmy Decker had a run in with one of the guards the other night. The officer of the guard appeared and told him to be more careful in the future. Jimmy is wondering what the officer of the day was doing out so late at night.

The medical officers of the Tenth have cement floors in their tents, a fact which is exciting favorable comment.

The boys of the hospital corps are having a water line run to their kitchen today. They also intend to rig up a shower bath, too, and it is needed. The sand here is awfully dirty.

"Pat" Bath and Charles Brant started out last night to serve Colonel Kruger with their pig stunt, but got cold feet. They were afraid his 45 might be loaded with the real thing.

Edgar Horner sat down on one of the cactus plants the boys transferred from the mountains to in front of their tent.

Nothing has been heard from the boys in the Marathon district lately. They are not recognized as a part of the regiment now, but are a separate organization.

The turn out at sick call has dwindled down to scarcely nothing, the bulk of the boys being fine. Home sickness is still a little bothersome and almost everybody would like to be back to dear old Pennsylvania.

Why FRICTION.

Let's agree right at the start that wherever there are moving mechanical parts and metal-to-metal contact, a certain proportion of friction—that age-old bugbear—is unavoidable. Your job and ours is to see that this proportion is reduced to its lowest possible terms. This is where Atlantic Motor Oils figure.

Atlantic Motor Oils divide themselves naturally into a group of four principal lubricants: Atlantic Polarine, Atlantic Light, Atlantic Medium, and Atlantic Heavy.

For eight out of ten cars, Atlantic Polarine is the 100-percent year-round oil that strikes terror to the hearts of old General Friction and his corps of death-dealers.

In certain types of motors and under certain driving conditions, one of the other three Atlantic Motor Oils is listed above may do the trick better than Atlantic Polarine. This is a matter for you to decide in conference with your mechanic.

The big thing to remember is that this group of four lubricants—the product of the world's oldest and largest lubricant manufacturers—is the worst enemy the Friction Army ever lined up against.

Atlantic Gasoline is the accepted standard motor fuel. Atlantic Motor Oils are efficient, and important to proper lubrication as Atlantic Gasoline is to motive power.

This lubrication thing is serious—better give it thought.

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about lubrication. It's free. Ask your garage for it. If they cannot supply you, drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

PHILADELPHIA PITTSBURGH

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Allen Portable Bath System. Hot and cold water—no plumbing—no waterworks—no wash room to clean—no tubs to clean—no pipes to freeze. Most sanitary bathing device ever invented. Combines at one operation, through one and the same device, the four properties of cleanliness, friction, massage and shower bathing.

I have secured permission from the Allen Manufacturing Company of Toledo, Ohio to introduce the "Allen Portable Bath System" in Fayette county. I have watched the tremendous sales of this truly wonderful invention for the past year and recently purchased an outfit. I found it to be even more wonderful than they claim it to be. There is absolutely nothing like it—nothing to compare with it. It does more than the ordinary bath tub costing 50 times the price and does it better and quicker. Scientists and medical authorities all agree that the purpose of proper bathing is to open, cleanse and purify the pores of dirt and dead deposits. This being true, it stands to reason that no method of bathing solves as thoroughly and completely the purpose of proper bathing as the Allen Portable Bath System. Wash rugs and sponges do not open and cleanse the pores of the outer and not the inner surface. Aside from being superficial in action, they are not sanitary, but germ-breeding. These facts in themselves are enough to condemn the ordinary bath, but they are not the only objections—you are constantly washing and re-washing in dirty water—water contaminated by previous contact with the body. There is the scrubbing of the tub after the bath—which is as hard to make clean as scrubbing cleanliness of person. The Allen Portable Bath System—only for yourself, one for the tub. The Allen Clear Water System provides a newer, more convenient, more sanitary, less expensive and vastly superior way of bathing and overcomes all these objections. I am going to make you an individual proposition which will last only until a few of the Allen Portable Bath Outfits are placed.

Write your name and address on a postal and send it to me and I will bring an "Allen Portable Bath System" to your home and let you use it over night at not one penny's cost. The price is $65.00 for the complete outfit. I shall not ask you to buy it. It sells itself.

MANY DECISIONS HANDED DOWN BY VAN SWEARINGEN

Holds County Treasurer May Soll W. H. Thompson
Land for Taxes.

COUNTY HOME LOSES ITS FIGHT

Dispute With Uniontown Water Company Over Rates Must be Settled by Public Service Commission; One Divorce Refused and Four Granted.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, August 1.—Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen handed down opinions and entered decrees today in a dozen cases. In the case of the receivers of William M. Thompson against George O. Rush, county treasurer, which was an application for an injunction to restrain the treasurer from selling lands of the estate of William M. Thompson for taxes, a preliminary injunction was granted; the case was dissolved. It was held by Judge Van Swearingen that the remedy for an irregular assessment is an appeal to the taxing power.

Judge Van Swearingen dissolved a preliminary injunction and dismissed a bill in equity filed by the poor debtors against the Uniontown Water Company to restrain the company from shutting off the water from the county home. The contest between the parties was over the rates to be paid for the water. The court said that by a recent act of assembly the power to decide such questions had been taken away from the courts and conferred on the Public Service Commission.

In the case of the Commonwealth against Joseph B. Poole, in which the defendant was convicted of bigamy in 1912, and sentenced to a term of imprisonment in the county jail, Judge Van Swearingen entered a decree on the petition of the second wife, Beatrice Hixenbaugh, declaring the marriage of the defendant to her null and void. The petition set forth that the petitioner was married to the defendant at Uniontown on May 29, 1912, not knowing that at that time he had another wife living.

Exceptions were overruled by Judge Van Swearingen to a decree of the court made recently in the case of Emma A. Sterling against the Fayette County Gas Company. The plaintiff had asked for an injunction restraining the gas company from disconnecting a service line through which the plaintiff had been receiving free gas at her residence in Mason-town. It was held by the court when the case was heard that the evidence was not sufficient upon which to grant the injunction for which the plaintiff prayed. It was to this ruling that the exceptions were filed. In the order of the court made Tuesday the former ruling of the court was made absolute and final.

A motion and reason for a new trial were overruled and dismissed by Judge Van Swearingen in the case of the McDowell Manufacturing Company against E. B. Marshall. At the trial the controversy was over a bill of merchandise which it was alleged the defendant had purchased from the plaintiff company and failed to pay for.

Judge Van Swearingen overruled a demurrer to a rule taken by J. W. Gween on Lewis Gween to show cause why J. W. Gween should not receive credit for $694.99 alleged to have been paid by him on a note against him held by Lewis Gween. This controversy has been in the courts for some time. The court made an order allowing testimony to be taken in the case to show the facts.

Judge Van Swearingen refused one application for divorce and granted four. Anna Hunter Shaley of Arnold City, was one of the successful applicants, being granted a divorce from her husband, Joseph B. Shaley on the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment.

Andy Rohaly of Franklin township, secured a severance of his marriage ties with his wife, Margaret Rohaly, on grounds of desertion.

Edwin S. Marks of Ronco got a divorce from his wife, Laura A. Marks, on grounds of desertion. John P. Johnson of Uniontown was successful in his application for a release from his wife, Isabel M. Johnson, on grounds of desertion.

Sore Eruption With Itching, Burning and Loss of Sleep, Hair Came Out.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little boy's trouble began when a winter blister would raise up, and then break and where the water touched there would be another blister and then they would be all over his body. He had them mostly in his hair and around his mouth and eyes. They would break and then there would be a dreadful sore eruption, with an itching and burning and loss of sleep. The blisters also caused red marks that looked like scars of a burn, and his hair came out. Then I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using them about one week he was entirely healed." SCOTSDALE CHURCH SERVICES DROPPED; ATTENDANCE SMALL

Not Enough Interest Shown in the Evening Union Meetings.

SOME MINISTERS TO REST UP

With Only Handful at the July Union Gatherings, Pastors Decide to Suspend the Services; Unhappy Gleanings; Other Ministers' Town News.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, August 1.—Scottsdale churchgoers do not attend church during the warm weather and for this reason the local ministers have decided that they will do away with the union services that they had intended holding during the month of August. The attendance in the churches in the evening during the month of July was very poor. While July was an unusually hot month, the attendance should have been better, the ministers think. Since nearly all of the ministers in town take their vacation in August it will leave the town practically without church in the evenings during the month of August.

HEALTH AGAIN, HAD SUFFERED FOR TEN YEARS

Kinter Relieved of Serious Stomach Trouble, Due to Typhoid Fever.

That Tanlac is an unusual body invigorant and restorer of the ravages of diseases is indicated by the experience of A. A. Kinter, a switchman on the New York Central Railroad who resides at 517 Cascade street, Erie, Pa. Mr. Kinter has had a remarkable restoration to complete health, after 10 years of illness. He said:

"I had typhoid fever 10 years ago, which left my stomach in a very bad condition. I had terrible severe spells periodically, when I could not keep anything I ate on my stomach. 'When I was having these spells I would be awakened from my sleep by terrible choking spells and it seemed like my chest would burst and my heart would stop. I would be afraid I was going to die before daylight. 'I took all kinds of remedies but they did me no good. Finally I saw Tanlac advertised. I bought a bottle. After the first few doses, its effect on me was almost marvelous. 'My stomach trouble began to disappear, my appetite improved, and I was able to eat a big meal and sleep. 'After I had taken three bottles my health was remarkably improved. Now I can eat whatever I please. I sleep sound as a dollar all night long and all the bad effects of the typhoid fever are gone. 'Tanlac is now sold in Connelville exclusively by the Connelville Drug Company, where the premier preparation can now be had. 'Tanlac can also be secured in Dunbar at D. C. Enson's Drug Store—Adv.

NEGROES IN TROUBLE

Lawsuit Results from Row at a Colored Picnic on July 18.

J. N. Staughter brought information against William Butler on Saturday evening before Alderman O'Donnovan on a charge of threatening and wounding him. Both parties are negroes and the suit is an echo of the negro picnic of July 18.

Staughter was in charge of one of the special cars then and when Butler tried to head him off, Staughter threatened to "get even with him."

On Saturday Butler followed his enemy with a club and on several other occasions tried to waylay him. At the hearing Butler paid the costs and bound himself to keep the peace and not molest the other negro. Constable Tasson made the arrest.

EVILS ARRIVE.

Youths in Midstream Defy Officer Who Seeks to Capture Them.

A Baltimore & Ohio officer ordered several Dunbar boys, who were bathing naked in the Yough some distance above the South Connelville beach, to come out and allow themselves to be arrested Sunday afternoon. The youths refused on the grounds that they were not trespassing on the railroad, having entered from the Dunbar side.

The boys say the officer drew a gun and again told them to come out but they stayed in midstream and after a while he withdrew.

ROWDY FANS HURT BASEBALL

So Says Hughie Jennings, Detroit's Fiery Leader.

HE SUGGESTS A REMEDY.

Leader of the Tigers Wants the American League Club Owners to Squelch "Foul Mouthed Spectators"—He Discusses His Club's Condition.

Hugh Ambrose Jennings, sometimes lawyer, and now somewhat engrossed in managing the Detroit club of the American league, has a bone to pick with the fan of his circuit. Hugh Ambrose believes that the fan has not kept pace with progress in baseball. He declares that while the player has made marvelous strides as far as personality and conduct are concerned, the onlooker has changed little from the "good old days" of epithets and more solid missiles. Jennings unflinching his recent artillery recently.

Hughie was answering a question as to why managers in the field of organized baseball allowed loud mouthed, boisterous fans to yell at players by allowing them to either their profane comments through the grand stand and two hit section, without taking adequate means to guard it.

Not that Hughie objects to having a fan ride a coasting line. Not at all.

"Stop a fan from yelling and making noise and you take the color from the game," quoth he, his blue eyes twinkling. "Often after the opposing team makes a tally somebody will yell from the stand, 'How do you like that, eh?' and all I can do is to try to come back."

"What I object to is this: A fan will get up and deliberately shout an insulting epithet that has nothing to do with his playing ability or any act of his on the ball field. This can and must be stopped. Ban Johnson probably has done more to put the game on the basis where you can take your wife, sister or sweetheart to the game, knowing that she will be perfectly safe there, than anybody else. The players have done their share. But some of the patrons haven't done their part."

"They use language directed at the players that is not fit for any person to hear."

Whereupon Mister Hugh Jennings of Detroit and Epsilon unfolded his plan by which baseball can be purged of rowdies in the stand just as it is being cleaned gradually of rowdy players.

"The evil could be checked readily if the owners wanted to do it. I do not know the pay the policemen get who are stationed there, but I feel sure that it would not cost much more to have several plain clothes men in the grand stand and bleachers."

"Then," continued the co-star of Willie Koster, John McGraw and Wilbert Robertson and the man who pulled the Tigers to three pennants, "when a man said something objectionable he would be spotted immediately by the detective and escorted to the street, with a return of his admission money. Let the papers give publicity to such an ejection if it should be put into effect and the fans soon would come to realize that there is a difference between "piling" a man and openly insulting him.

Robinson, Leader of Dodgers, Happiest Man In Baseball

MOBEST WILBERT ROBINSON, the leader of the Brooklyn Nationals, is the happiest individual in baseball these days. Of course all this is due to the fact that his team is now leading the National league and has a splendid chance to cup the banner. Robby is too old a bird to make rash predictions at this stage of the race, but right under his hat he is almost ready to swear that there is no team strong enough to push his Dodgers out of first place. Experts figure that if the Dodgers keep up their present gait they will surely win the National league pennant.

Incidentally Hughie placed the blame of the Tigers' present position on the crumbling of the offensive—the famous offensive that put the Tigers in the same class with the picturesque Giants and the old Cub machine as one of the greatest road teams in drawing the fans to the parks. Although the pitching staff of Jennings' club was the thing that worried him when the season opened, Hughie said that now it was lack of punch with the war clubs.

TELEGRAPH WITH LIGHTS.

Battleships Can Send Signals Twelve Miles In Daylight.

Although searchlight signaling between battleships was a means of communication at sea long before the introduction of wireless telegraphy, it is still utilized.

The latest battleships of our navy are equipped with projectors designed especially for this purpose, while the older vessels use their regular searchlights, for which auxiliary shutters are supplied. Lenses operating these latter shutters, flashing the flashes on and off quickly so that messages may be spelled out in dots and dashes, either at day or night.

For day signaling the light shaft is directed squarely at the observer, and for enabling this a telescope is mounted with the projector. When atmospheric conditions are good the radius of communication is about twelve miles in any direction. At night this is obviously much increased, for light may be played on some prominent cloud and seen for a distance of forty or fifty miles.

When there are no clouds the searchlights may be directed skyward and their shafts of light seen at closer range. The feasibility of launching capsule balloons as substitutes for cloud banks has been suggested.—Popular Mechanics.

Scared by the Elephant.

Tradition has it that Caesar brought elephants with him to Britain and that they contributed to his conquest of the island. Having unsuccessfully attempted to cross the Thames, Caesar built a large turret on an elephant and, loading it with bowmen and slingers, ordered them to pass the stream, whereupon the Britons, terrified at the sight of the unknown monster, fled in confusion.—London Chronicle.

Questions and Answers.

The time elapsing between a question and an answer is almost as important as the answer itself. It may be wisely long or short, but the longer it is the wiser must be the answer.

THROCKMORTON COMING STAR.

New Jersey Tennis Player Fast Developing Into Championship Class.

Harold A. Throckmorton of Rahway, N. J., the winner of the Maryland state championship and of the recent Chevy Chase tourney, seems to have impressed the New York tennis critics with his displays of brilliant tennis. Last year he won the interscholastic championship and was runner-up to Karl Debe in the Middle States championship. Last winter he spent a few weeks at Palm Beach and while there was runner-up to Irving C. Wright of Boston in the Florida championships.

He possesses one of the most pleasing styles of any of the youngsters who have been developed on eastern courts and has adopted the smashing, dashing game of the Californians with good success. When he played here his back hand was pronounced one of the finest which has been seen on New York courts, not being the ordinary

RAILROADS WANT ACT POSTPONED

NEW STYLES FOR MEN.

A Novelty Resembles the Fatigue Hat of National Guardsmen.

Fashions for men have begun to take a surprising turn. From Spain recently came something quite new in the form of the sandal coat, which, according to prediction, will be popular when the hot weather sets in. And now a new style hat for men has been found to rival the old standby sailor. It made its appearance in New York, where it attracted considerable attention.

The new model is very like the broad, flat fatigue hat of the national guardsmen. The hats were seen on the streets of New York in some Fifth Avenue shops, where it was stated that they were originated to supplant the Mexican sombrero.

WILL COACH THE CHINESE.

Ewing of William Jewell College to Train Oriental Athletes.

Ray H. Ewing, a member of the 1916 graduating class at William Jewell college, Liberty, Mo., has received the appointment of athletic coach of Wuyland academy, Hong Chow, China.

Ewing was a star in several branches of sport at the Liberty college and is well-fitted for the duties he is to assume. Roger Arnold of the 1913 class also will be sent to China this year as a missionary.

When Nature Was Timekeeper.

In the British museum is a large stone composed of carbonate of lime, which would serve perfectly as a day-laborer's calendar, inasmuch as it would indicate to him every Sunday and holiday of the year, though not the day of the month. Moreover, the stone is an actual time record of the work done for a long period in an English coal mine.

The "Sunday stone," as it is called, was removed from a colliery drain. When the miners were at work the water running through the drain left a deposit colored black by the coal dust, but when no work was being done the water ran down clear and left a white deposit. These deposits in the course of time built up the stone.

Each day of work left a black streak, immediately followed by a white streak made during the night. Wide white streaks indicate the holidays and Sundays.

RAILROADS WANT ACT POSTPONED

President Wilson Urged to Have the Clayton Law Deferred Until Roads are Investigated.

President Wilson has been urged by representatives of the railroad executive advisory committee, to ask Congress to have the operation of some provisions of the Clayton anti-trust act postponed until the railroad situation is further investigated.

The railroad officials consider sections of the act conflicting. One provides that after October 15 common carriers shall not have any dealings in securities, or supplies, or make contracts for construction or maintenance amounting to more than $50,000 a year with corporations having officials or employees connected with the common carrier unless the transactions are carried on by competitive bidding under rules prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The other relates to the control of corporations engaged in commerce for the purpose of lessening competition. The President was requested to incorporate in requesting Congress to postpone operation of the former section for two years until the joint commission of Congress created for the purpose of investigating the entire railroad problem, has an opportunity to report.

Amendments to the act have been recommended favorably by sub-committees of the judiciary committees of both the Senate and the House.

SAND STORM IS FULL OF THRILLS

Mount Pleasant Boys Get Some Real Excitement Along the Border.

Special to The Courier.

EL PASO, July 27.—Well, the people in Mount Pleasant might have electric storms, but there is one thing sure it never had a sand storm and our boys here have gone through one of the Texas sand storms. I think for the benefit of Pennsylvania's boys it added something to the ones they generally had. We had just gone to bed when the storm came up and it blew several of the tents away and it got the boys excited and we got out to look around and had to wade six and seven inches in water.

The boys are all so tanned that you would hardly know any of them. Those who were tanned when they left have a deep Mexican shade now and can hardly be told from them by color.

Quartermaster Ray Gelsthorpe is doing good for the boys and they are all gaining in weight.

Harry Keller has been detailed to Captain G. S. Bryce and has charge of 27 wagons and a number of horses and mules. Edward Baker is acting first sergeant. Everybody is well.

Author of "Keith of the Border," "My Lady of Doubt," "The Maid of the Forest," etc.

"The regular, monsieur?" he asked. "By order of the king, returned to Barre shortly. 'Beyond the Frontier' is not necessary that you inquire. Ah! Monsieur Chevet? They found you then? I have a pleasant surprise for you. The heretofore ordered that you accompany Comtesse Cassion to the Illinois country as interpreter, to be paid from my private fund."

Chevet stared into the governor's dark face, unable to comprehend his brain dazed from heavy drinking. "The Illinois country? I—Hugo Chevet? This some joke, monsieur?"

"None at all, as you will discover presently, my man. I do not jest of the king's service."

"But my land, monsieur; my niece?"

In Barre permitted himself a laugh. "I let the king know the following: 'twit cost little while you draw a wage, and as for mademoiselle, the king that you accompany her I make choice. Stand back; you have your orders, and now I'll show you good reason." He stood up and placed his hand on Cassion's arm. "Now, my dear Francois, if you will join the lady."

CHAPTER VI.

The Wife of Francois Cassion. It is vague, all that transpired, I knew then, and recall now, much of the scene, yet it returns to memory more in a passing picture than an actual reality in which I was an actor. But one clear impression dominated my brain—my helplessness to resist the command of La Barre. His word was law in the colony, and from it there was no appeal, save to the king. Through swimming mist I saw his face, stern, dark, threatening, and then glimpsed Cassion approaching me, a smile curling his thin lips. I shrank back from him, yet aware to my feet, trembling so that I clung to the chair to keep erect.

"Do not touch me, monsieur," I said in a voice which scarcely sounded like my own. Cassion stood still, the smile of triumph leaving his face. La Barre turned, his eyes cold and hard.

"What is this, mademoiselle? You would dare disobey me?"

I caught my breath, gripping the chair with both hands.

"No, Monsieur le Gouverneur," I answered, surprised at the clearness with which I spoke. "That would be useless; you have behind you the power of France, and I am a mere girl. Nor do I appeal, for I know well the cause of your decision. It is indeed my privilege to appeal to Holy Church for protection from this outrage, but not through such representative as I see here."

"Perse is Guard is chaplain of my household."

"And servant to your will, monsieur. The known in all New France he is more diplomat than priest. Nay, I take back my word, and will make trial of his priesthood. Father, I do not love this man, nor marry him of my own free will. I appeal to you, to the church, to refuse the sanction."

The priest stood with fingers interlocked, and head bowed, nor did his eyes meet mine.

"I am but the humble instrument of those in authority, daughter," he replied gently, "and must perform the sacred duties of my office. 'Tis your own confession that your hand has been pledged to Monsieur Cassion."

"By Hugo Chevet, not myself."

"Enough of this," broke in La Barre sternly, and he gripped my arm. "The girl hath lost her head, and such controversy is useless in my presence. Perse, Guard, let the ceremony proceed."

"Tis your order, monsieur."

"Ay, do I not speak my will plainly enough? Come, the hour is late, and your king's business is of more import than the whim of a girl."

I never moved, never lifted my eyes. I was conscious of nothing, but helpless, impotent anger, of volcanic flame. They might force me to go through the form, but never would they make me the wife of this man. My mind throbbled with rebellion, my mind hardened into revolt. I knew all that occurred, realized the significance of every word and act, yet it was as if they appertained to someone else. I felt the clammy touch of Cassion's hand on my nerveless fingers, and I must have answered the interrogatories of the priest, for his voice droned on, meaningless to the end. It was only in the silence which followed that I resumed to regain consciousness, and a new grip on my numbed faculties. Indeed I was still groping in the fog, bewildered, inert, when La Barre gave utterance to a coarse laugh.

"Congratulations, Francois," he cried. "A fair wife, and not so unwilling after all. And now your first kiss."

"The snarer of these words was like a slap in the face, and all the hatred, and indignation I felt seethed to the surface. A heavy paper white lay on the desk, and I gripped it in my fingers, and stepped back, facing them. The mist seemed to roll away, and I saw their faces, and there must have been that in mine to startle them, for even La Barre gave back a step, and the grin faded from the thin lips of the commissaire.

"Tis ended then," I said, and my voice did not falter. "I am this man's wife. Very well, you have had your way; now I will have mine. Listen to what I shall say, Monsieur le Gouverneur, and you also, Francois Cassion. By rite of church you call me wife, but that is your only claim. I know your law, and that this ceremony has sealed my lips. I am your captive, nothing more; you can rob me now—but mark you! all that you will ever get is money. Monsieur Cassion, if you dare lay so much as a finger on me, I will kill you as I would a snake. I know what I say, and mean it. You know me! Try it, monsieur, if you doubt how my race repays insult. I will go with you; I will bear your name; this the law compels, but I am still mistress of my soul, and of my body. You hear me, messieurs? You understand?"

Cassion stood leaning forward, just where my first words had held him motionless. As I paused his eyes were on my face, and he lifted a hand to wipe away drops of perspiration. La Barre crumpled the paper he held savagely.

"So," he exclaimed, "we have unchained a tiger out. Well, all this is taught to me; and Francois, I leave you and the wilderness to do the taming. In faith, 'tis time already you were off. You agree to accompany the party without resistance, madame?"

"As well there, as here," I answered contemptuously.

"And you, Hugo Chevet?"

The giant growled something inarticulate through his beard, not altogether, I thought, to La Barre's liking, for his face darkened.

"By St. Anne! 'tis a happy family amid which you start your honeymoon, Monsieur Cassion," he ejaculated at length, "but go you must, though I send a file of soldiers with you to the boats. Now leave me, and I would hear no more until word comes of your arrival at St. Louis."

We left the room together, the three of us, and no one spoke, as we traversed the great assembly hall, in which dancers still lingered, and gazed the outer hall. Cassion secured my cloak, and I wrapped it about my shoulders, for the night air without was already chill, and then, yet in unbroken silence, we passed down the steps into the darkness of the street. I walked beside Chevet, who was growling to himself, scarce sober enough to clearly realize what had occurred, and so we followed the commissaire down the stop path which led to the river.

Vaguely I comprehended that I was no longer Adele in Chassanyne, but the wife of that man I followed. A word, a muttered prayer, an uplifted hand, had made me his slave, his vassal. Nothing could break the bond between us save death. I might hate, despise, revile, but the bond held. This thought grew clearer as my mind readjusted itself, and the full horror of the situation took possession of me. Yet there was nothing I could do; I could neither escape nor fight, nor had I a friend to whom I could appeal. Suddenly I realized that I still grasped in my hand the heavy paper knife I had snatched up from La Barre's desk, and I thrust it into the waistband of my skirt. It was my only weapon of defense, yet I knew I had even that seemed to bring me a glow of courage.

We reached the river's edge and halted. Below us, on the bank, the blazes; I saw omitted a red gleam reflecting on the water, and showing as the dark outlines of waiting canoes, and seated figures. Gazing about Cassion broke the silence, his voice assuming the harshness of authority.

"Three canoes! Where is the other? Hush! If there be delay now, someone will make answer to me. Toss the word for the sergeant; ah! is this you, Le Claire?"

"All is prepared, monsieur."

"He glared at the stocky figure fronting him in infantry uniform.

"Prepared! You have but three boats at the bank."

"The other is below, monsieur; it is loaded and wait to lead the way."

"Ah! and who is in charge?"

"Was it not your will that it be the guide—the St. Ursula?"

"Sacre! but I had forgotten the fellow. Ay! 'tis the best place for him. And are all provisions and arms aboard? You checked them, Le Claire?"

"With me, monsieur; I watched the stowing of each piece; there is nothing forgotten."

I found myself in one of the canoes, as fitted with men any movement was almost impossible, yet of this I did not complain, for my Uncle Chevet was next to me, and Cassion took place at the steering oar in the stern. To be separated from him was all I asked. He had won; he had used his power to conquer! Very well, now he would pay the price. He thought me a helpless girl; he would find me a woman, and a La Chassanyne. The tears left my eyes, and my head lifted, as purpose and decision returned.

We were skirting the northern bank, the high bluffs blotting out the stars, with here and there, far up above us, a light gleaming from some distant window, its rays reflecting along the black water. The Indian paddlers worked silently, driving the sharp prow of the heavily laden canoe steadily up stream. Farther out to the left was the dim outline of another boat, keeping pace with ours, the moving figures of the paddlers, revealed against the water beyond.

As the sun forced its way through an obscuring cloud, the mist rose slowly and drifted aside, giving me glimpse of the canoe in advance, although it remained indistinct, a vague speck in the waste of water. I sat motionless, gazing about at the scene, yet vaguely comprehending the nature of our surroundings. My mind reviewed the strange events of the past night, and endeavored to adjust itself to my new environment. Almost in an instant of time my life had utterly changed—I had been married and official, wedded to a man whom I despised, and forced to accompany him into the unknown wilderness. It was like a dream, a delirium of fever, and even yet I could not seem to comprehend its dread reality. But the occasional sound of Cassion's voice, the slumbering figure of Chevet was evidence of truth not to be ignored, and ahead yonder, a mere outline, was the boat which contained D'Artigny. What would he say, or do, when he learned the truth? Would he care greatly? Had I read rightly the message of his eyes? Could I have trust, and confidence in his loyalty? Would he accept my explanation? or would he condemn me for this act in which I was in no wise to blame? Mother of God! it came to me that it was not so much Monsieur Cassion I feared; as the St. Ursula. What would be his verdict? My heart seemed to stop its beating, and tears dimmed my eyes, as I gazed across the water at that distant canoe. I knew then that all my courage, all my hope, centered on his decision—the decision of the man I loved.

CHAPTER VII.

The Two Men Meet.

I could not have slept, although I must have lost consciousness of our surroundings, for I was aroused by Cassion's voice shouting some command, and became aware that we were making landing on the river bank. The sun was two hours high, and the spot selected a low grass-covered point, shaded by trees. Chevet had awakened, sobered by his nap, and the advance canoe had already been drawn up on the shore, the few soldiers it contained busily engaged in starting fires with which to cook our morning meal.

I perceived D'Artigny with my first glance, standing erect on the bank, his back toward us, directing the men in their work. As we shot forward toward the landing he turned suddenly, and I marked the sudden straightening of his body, as though in surprise, although the distance gave me no clear vision of his face. As our canoe came into the shallows he sprang down the bank to greet us, but in hand, his eyes on me. My own glance fell before the eagerness in his face, and I turned away.

"Ah! Monsieur Cassion," he exclaimed, the very sound of his voice evidencing delight. "You have guests on the journey; 'tis unexpected."

Cassion stepped over the side and greeted him, no longer a smiling gallant of the court, but brutal in authority.

"And what is that to you, may I ask, St. Ursula?" he said coldly contemptuously. "You are but our guide, and it is no concern of yours who may compose the company. 'Twill be well for you to remember your place, and attend to your duties. Go now, and see that the men have breakfast served."

There was a moment of silence, and I did not even venture to glance up to perceive what occurred, although I felt that D'Artigny's eyes shifted their inquiry from Cassion's face to mine. There must be no quarrel now, not until he knew the truth, not until I had opportunity to explain, and yet he was a freeman, and it would be like him to resent such words. How relieved I felt as his voice made final answer.

"Farewell, Monsieur le Commissaire," he said, pleasantly enough. "It is true I forgot my place in this moment of surprise. I obey your orders."

I looked up as he turned away and disappeared. Cassion stared after him, smothered an oath, and evidently disappointed at so tame an ending of the affair, for it was his nature to bluster and boast. Yet as his lips changed to a grin, I knew of what the man was thinking—he had mistaken D'Artigny's notions for cowardice, and felt assured now of how he would deal with him. He turned to the canoe, a new conception of importance in the sharp tone of his voice.

"Come ashore, men; draw the boat higher on the sand. Now, Monsieur Chevet, assist your niece forward to where I can help her to land with dry feet—permit me Adele."

"It is not necessary, monsieur," I replied, avoiding his hand and leaping lightly to the firm sand. "You have forced me into marriage; the law holds me as your wife. I know not how I may escape that fate, or avoid accompanying you. So far I submit, but no further. I do not love you; I do not even feel friendship toward you. Let me pass."

He grasped my arm, turning me about until I faced him, his eyes glaring into mine.

"Not until I speak," he replied threateningly. "Do not mistake my temper, or imagine me blind. I know what has so suddenly changed you—it is that gay, slumbering fool yonder. But be careful how far you go. I am your husband, and in authority here."

I released my arm, but did not move. My only feeling toward him at that moment was one of disgust, defiance. The threat in his eyes, the cool insolence of his speech, set my blood on fire.

"Monsieur," I said coldly, although every nerve of my body throbbled, "you may know girls, but you deal now with a woman. Your speech, your insinuation is insult. I disliked you before; now I despise you, yet I will say this in answer to what you have said: Monsieur D'Artigny is nothing to me, save that he hath shown himself friend. You wrong him, even as you wrong me, in thinking otherwise, and whatever the cause of misunderstanding between us, there is no excuse for you to pick quarrel with him."

"You appear greatly concerned over his safety."

"Not at all; so far as I have ever heard the St. Ursula has heretofore proven himself quite capable of sustaining his own part. 'Tis more like I am concerned for you."

"For me? You fool! Why, I was a swordsman when that lad was at his mother's knee." He laughed, but with ugly gleam of teeth. "Sacre! I hate such play acting. But enough of quarrel now; there is sufficient time ahead to bring you to your senses, and a knowledge of who is your master. Hugo Chevet, come here."

My uncle climbed the bank, his ride in hand, with face still pained and red from the drink of the night before. Behind him appeared the slender, black-robed figure of the Jesuit, his eyes agaze with curiosity. It was sight of the latter which caused Cassion to moderate his tone of command.

"You will go with Chevet," he said, pointing to the fire among the trees, "until I can talk to you alone."

"A prisoner?"

"No; a guest," sarcastically, "but do not overstep the courtesy."

We left him in conversation with the priest, and I did not even glance back. Chevet breathed heavily, and I caught the mutter of his voice. "What meaneth all this chatter?" he asked gruffly. "Must you two quarrel so soon?"

"Why not?" I retorted. "The man bears me no love; 'tis but gold he thinks about."

"Gold?" he stopped and slapped his thighs. "This precious little of that he will ever see then."

"And why not? Was not my father a land owner?"

"Ay! till the king took it."

"Then even you do not know the truth. I am glad to learn that, for I have dreamed that you sold me to this coxcomb for a share of the spoils."

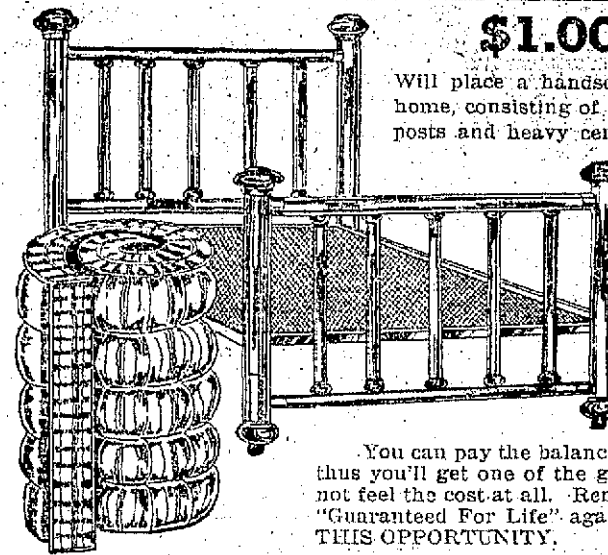

"What? a share of the spoils? Bah! I am no angel, girl, nor pretend to a virtue more than I possess. There is truth in the thought that I might benefit by your marriage to Monsieur Cassion, and, by my faith, I see no wrong

In that. Have you not cost me heavily in these years? Why should I not seek for you a husband of worth in these colonies? Wherefore is that a crime? Were you my own daughter I could do no less, and this man is not ill to look upon, a fair-spoken gallant, a friend of La Barre's, chosen by him for special service."

"And with influence in the fur trade."

"All the better that," he continued obstinately. "Why should a girl object if her husband be rich?"

"But he is not rich," I said plainly, looking straight into his eyes. "He is no more than a penniless adventurer; an actor playing a part assigned him by the governor; while you and I do the same. Listen, Monsieur Chevet, the property at St. Thomas is mine by legal right, and it was to gain possession that this wretch sought my hand."

"Your legal right?"

"Ay, restored by the king in special order."

"It is not true; I had the records searched by a lawyer, Monsieur Gaultier of St. Anne."

I gave a gesture of indignation.

"A country advocate at whom those in authority would laugh. I tell you what I say is true; the land was restored, and the fact is known to La Barre and to Cassion. It is this fact which has caused all our troubles. I overheard talk last night between the governor and his aide-de-camp, Colonel Delgard—you know him?"

Chevet nodded, his interest stirred.

"They thought themselves alone, and were laughing at the success of their trick. I was hidden behind the heavy curtains at the window, and every word they spoke reached my ears. Then they sent for Cassion."

"But where is the paper?"

"I did not learn; they have it hidden, no doubt, awaiting the proper time to produce it. But there is such a document. La Barre explained that clearly, and the reason why he wished Cassion to marry me. They were all three talking when an accident happened, which led to my discovery."

"Ah! and so that was what hurried the wedding, and sent me on this wild wilderness chase. They would bury me in the woods—sacre!"

"Hush now—Cassion has left the canoe already, and we can talk of this later. Let us seem to suspect nothing."

This was the first meal of many eaten together along the river bank in the course of our long journey, yet the recollection of that scene rises before my memory now with peculiar vividness. Cassion had divided us into groups, and from where I had found resting place, with a small flat rock for table, I was enabled to see the others scattered to the edge of the bank, and thus learned for the first time the character of those with whom I was destined to companion on the long journey. There were but four of us in that first group, which included Peré Alouez, a silent man, frowning his cross, and barely touching food. His face under the black cowl was drawn, and creased by strange lines, and his eyes burned with vagueness. If I had ever dreamed of him as one to whom I might turn for counsel, the thought instantly vanished as our glances met.

A soldier and two Indians served us, while their companions divided into two groups, were gathered at the other extremity of the ridge, the soldiers under discipline of their own underofficers, and the Indians, watched over by St. Ursula, who rested, however, slightly apart, his gaze on the broad river. Never once while I observed did he turn and glance my way. I counted the meal as I endeavored to eat, scarcely heeding the few words exchanged by those about me. The Indians numbered to, including their chief, whom Cassion called Altuda. Chevet named them as Algonquins from the Ottawa, treacherous rascals enough, yet with expert knowledge of watercraft.

THE PRODUCERS OF BY-PRODUCT COKE WILL ADVERTISE

Their Organization Plans a Campaign National
in Its Scope.

FOR EDUCATION OF THE PUBLIC

As to the Merits and Advantages of this Type of Fuel: Newspapers to be the Medium of Publicity; Officers Elected; Another Meeting Planned.

Another significant step in the campaign of the producers of by-product coke to secure wider markets for their product will result from the first annual gathering of the By-Product Coke Producers of America, held recently in Boston. This association was formed in Chicago last January primarily for the purpose of collecting information relating to by-product coke and to evolve methods for its most practical distribution. It was also decided to conduct campaigns of publicity in order to increase the consumption of by-product coke by educating the public to the merits and advantages of the fuel.

The membership of the association consists of companies engaged in the manufacture of by-product coke for purposes of general sale, and their designated representatives. Producers of vertical retort coke may be included in the membership of the association.

At the Chicago meeting it was decided to hold a conference in Boston in July. At this gathering the following members of the association were present representing practically all of the by-product coke plants in the eastern and middle states and as far west as Saint Louis:

J. D. Forrest, president Citizens Gas Company, Indianapolis, Ind.; W. L. Ball, vice president Semet-Solway Company, Syracuse, N. Y.; W. J. Lavelle, secretary-treasurer N. E. Coal & Coke Company, Boston, Mass.; P. H. Woods, M. H. Warren Coke Company, St. Louis, Mo.; W. H. Blunt, Semet-Solway Company, Syracuse, N. Y.; J. A. Galligan, Plekanda, Brown & Company, Chicago, Ill.; C. H. Jenkins, the Donhoff & Joyce Company, Chicago, Ill.; Carroll Miller, Coal Products Manufacturing Company, Aurora, Ill.; D. MacArthur, Seaboard By-Product Coke Company, Jersey City, N. J.; N. Anderson, Devoe-Auderson Company, New York City, N. Y.; P. N. Bogart, Indiana Coke & Gas Company, Terre Haute, Ind.; C. Soane, Indiana Coke & Gas Company, Terre Haute, Ind.; F. W. Miller, Rogers, Brown & Company, Cincinnati, O.; T. V. Salt, Allegheny By-Product Coke Company, McKeesport, Pa.; C. U. Maxwell, Semet-Solway Company, Geneva, N. Y.; G. L. Crosby, Jr., Eaton Rhodes & Company, Cincinnati, O.; D. A. Barkley, Lehigh Coke Company, South Bethlehem, Pa.; J. R. Schurz, Camden Coke Company, Newark, N. J.; C. D. Caldwell, By-Products Coke Corporation, Chicago, Ill.

A constitution and by-laws for the association was formulated and adopted at the meeting, and a committee was appointed to standardize the domestic sizes of by-product coke. A report was read covering the work of the publicity committee. A comprehensive scheme of newspaper advertising national in its scope is under consideration. This work and the issuing of propaganda will be thought to be undertaken jointly by the various committees. A motion picture display of a large by-product coke oven plant was one of the features witnessed by the members during the discussion of the work of this committee.

The officers of the association were elected to serve until April 1, 1917, as follows: President, J. D. Forrest, Indianapolis; vice president, W. L. Ball, Syracuse; secretary-treasurer, W. J. Lavelle, Boston.

No papers were read but committees were appointed to report on certain topics and the next meeting will doubtless be much more productive from a news standpoint. Certain business details were considered in executive session and after luncheon the attending members became the guests of the New England Coal & Coke Company on a sail down Boston harbor to Nantasket Beach. A shore dinner was served at Paragon Park, where the members found a delightful cabaret entertainment during the evening. On the following morning the members were again the guests of the New England Coal & Coke Company on a visit by special train to its plant at Everett, Mass.

The attendance was somewhat disappointing to those in charge of the arrangements who, anticipating that interest in the objects of the gathering would draw many, had made extensive preparation for the entertainment of the guests. The next meeting in April is tentatively arranged for Detroit.

HOTEL MAN SUES

F. M. Rush Accuses Richmond Man of Passing Bad Checks.
Special to The Courier.

CHIOPTLE, Aug. 1.—F. M. Rush, proprietor of the Chiopyle House, has made information against Dr. E. A. Brown, who said that he was from Richmond, Va., and a United States revenue officer and chemist, on two charges of false pretense and absconding from a board bill.

Brown, who spent several days here recently is now in the county jail at Washington, Pa., according to word received by Mr. Rush, and a warrant was sent there for his arrest. It is expected that he will be brought to Chiopyle this week and given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Radcliffe Weir. Dr. Brown is accused of passing two spurious checks for $15 each on Mr. Rush and leaving the Chiopyle House without paying his board bill of $10.

COLE AND CUMMINGS,
CHIEF SPEAKERS OF
THE TWO BIG PARTIES.

RALPH D. COLE (Above)
HOMER S. CUMMINGS (Below)

Homer S. Cummings, who has been vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, is in charge of the Democratic speakers' bureau in the present national campaign and expects to have his organization in full working order soon. Chairman Willcox of the Republican national committee announced that he had appointed ex-Congressman Ralph D. Cole of Findlay, O., director of the Republican speakers' bureau. Mr. Cole was confined to the comptroller of the currency in the Taft administration and served four terms in the house of representatives. In the present campaign he was an active Burton supporter. He is an authority on the tariff.

At the Theatres

SOISSON THEATRE.

"A HUNTRESS OF MEN"—This subject is notable because of Mary Fuller. She never dons the same gown twice and the weird creations of the dressmaker that she displays would make even the most eccentric modiste green with envy. Miss Fuller also exhibits a striking array of colorful architecture. In fact, she is singularly out of the ordinary in appearance and is likely to cause much comment because of her eccentricities along this line.

"The Huntress of Men" however, is not as striking in any way as its star. It is built on a theme we all know—the taming of a heartless woman by a man who is aptly described as a "man among men." This man refuses to succumb to her wiles, as hordes of others had done. He marries her, quite by force, and then for a long time neither one admits love for the other, but after each of the pair have suffered largely from suppressed love they at last meet each other half way and live happily ever afterwards. "The Garden of Shadows" is a beautiful two reel modern society drama of a woman who neglects her child for society. "A Bold Bad Breeze" is an L-Ko comedy with Billie Ritchie. A heavy wind is the feature in this comedy. It blows Billie Ritchie, bed and all into a married woman's room and this leads on to the roof of another house. Many interesting scenes are shown in the "Animated Weekly No. 29." Tomorrow Ella Hall appears in the five reel Bluebird Photoplay, "The Love Girl."

PARAMOUNT THEATRE.

"MARIA ROSA"—Geraldine Farrar's third great picture made for the Lasky company is today's attraction at the Paramount. The great operatic star proved in her former pictures that not even her career at the Metropolitan overshadowed her genius as a screen star, and she occupied a position today among the very best photoplay actresses in "Maria Rosa."

Miss Farrar again acts in a Spanish story, recalling somewhat her superb portrayal of "Carmen." Maria Rosa is a peasant girl, simple of manner and clean of thought and life, who is plunged into the midst of tragedy by reason of the jealousy of an unworthy peasant suitor. The scenes are laid in a little village in Spain. The characters are men and women of strength and force, of deep passions and sincere loves. In the midst of these human forces Maria Rosa becomes the center of a drama, thrilling in its episodes, gripping in its appeal and happy in its ending. The supporting cast of this Paramount picture is particularly strong, including as it does Wallace Reid, Fredro de Cordoba, Anita Klag and H. B. Carpenter. Billie Burke will also appear in the third chapter of "Gloria's Romance," the motion picture novel by Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes. In this chapter the action gains swiftness, and Billie Burke becomes more enchanting than ever. Tomorrow Douglas Fairbanks, the favorite Triangle star, will appear in "Reggie Mixes In." He is supported by dainty Bessie Love. "Reggie Mixes In" is the story of a young society man who goes through a series of ups and downs, and so wins a bride. The famous Fairbanks smile is prominent in this Metro Arts production. A Keystone comedy will also be shown.

Tomorrow, Wednesday is the Last Day to Take Advantage of the Hundreds of "Bargain Day" Specials Offered at Connellsville's Foremost Store.

MT. PLEASANT PLANS TO REPAVE ITS MAIN STREET

Council Orders the Borough
Engineer to Draw Up
Specifications.

PARK COMMISSION ELIMINATED

Property Committee of Council Takes Over Management of Recreation Ground; Minor Brought to Hospital for Treatment of a Wile Kick; Notes.

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, August 1.—Council held a special meeting last night directing the borough engineer to draw up specifications for the repaving of Main street and present them at the regular meeting of council. The secretary was notified to take the matter up with the West Penn concerning the repaving of their tracks and 18 inches on either side. A turnout was ordered placed at the Shober alley on Washington street.

A motion was adopted to have stakes set on North Church street by the borough engineer so that they can go on with the paving.

A motion was adopted that the borough collector must turn over all moneys in his possession by next Monday night or his bond will be held for it. The ordinance creating a park commission and the rules that went with it were repealed last night and the park reverts back to the property committee of council. The dirty streets in town were ordered cleaned up. The street committee was ordered to repair Braddock road avenue.

The year old son of Tony Jewell, of Acme died at its home there yesterday. The child will be buried this evening at 8 o'clock in the Mount Pleasant cemetery.

C. E. Mullin, the North Church street farmer, had his first roasting ears last Thursday and will have some for market this week.

The Tri-State telephone switchboard has been moved to the new office in the DeVeer Building on Church street. On Thursday evening the ladies of the W. C. T. U. will have an alumni demonstration in the First Baptist Church with refreshments and a souvenir to the ladies of the household. They will charge 10 cents admission and the public is invited.

Steve Jancho, aged 38 years, was kicked by a mule at Alice yesterday in the right side and was brought to the Memorial Hospital for treatment. Max Yanovitz and Miss Kutzsky of Uniontown spent the week-end with Mr. Michelsons.

Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Freed of Pittsburg are visiting friends here. Samuel Dennison of Uniontown spent yesterday here.

WILL LECTURE ON
"PLAY BALL" AT
THE CHAUTAUQUA

HENRY CLARK.

"PLAY BALL" is the interesting subject upon which Henry Clark will lecture on the opening night of the Chautauqua. It is a great baseball lecture, but the ball game Mr. Clark refers to is the ball game of life.

"The glory of the summer afternoon, the thrill of the cheering multitude, the beauty of the playing field, appeal irresistibly to all," says one who has heard Mr. Clark's lecture. "But this is incidental. The audience sees more than the Ball Game. They see a striking parable, unfolding to them the greater game of life. 'Play Ball' is not an abstract lecture filled with glittering generalities, but is a vital, helpful, practical, inspirational message, already crowned with the approval of hundreds of delighted audiences."
